

Do not Stay Silent. Report Sexual and Gender-Based Violence.

Sexual and Gender-Based Violence is a crime and not a private family matter.

Reporting violence can:

Protect survivors from further harm.

Help survivors access medical care, counselling, legal aid, and protection.

Hold perpetrators accountable.

Prevent others from experiencing the same violence.

If you witness or experience violence, report it immediately. Every report matters.

Support Survivors, Do not Blame Them

Survivors need compassion not judgment.

Believe them.

Listen to them.

Help them access health care, psychosocial support, legal services, and protection.

Our County Government Must Do More

Every county has a responsibility to prevent violence and protect survivors.

We call on our County Government to:

- ✓ Invest in programmes that prevent SGBV.
- ✓ Ensure health facilities provide quality care for survivors.
- ✓ Strengthen referral systems between health, police, legal, and social services.
- ✓ Increase funding for prevention, survivor support, and community awareness.
- ✓ Train health workers, police officers, teachers, and community leaders to respond appropriately.
- ✓ Hold perpetrators accountable and enforce existing laws.

Violence thrives where systems fail.
Strong county systems save lives.

Ask Your Leaders

- Does our county have a budget to prevent and respond to SGBV?
- Can survivors easily access medical care, counselling, and legal support?
- Are health workers trained to support survivors?
- Are SGBV cases reported, investigated, and followed up?
- What is our county doing to prevent violence before it happens?
- Are schools and communities receiving education on preventing violence?

Communities that ask questions create safer counties.
